A NEW MUSICAL

“instantly transporting & delightful.
It’ll give you joy!”

--New York Magazine

Tony Award® winners Rebecca Taichman (Indecent) and Enda Walsh (Once) bring this spirited musical, based on John Carney’s “funny, joyful, and effortlessly cool” indie hit film, to Broadway, direct from its sold out run at New York Theatre Workshop.

Dublin, 1982. Everyone is out of work. Due to the bleak economic outlook, thousands are seeking bluer skies across the Irish Sea. Sixteen-year-old Conor and his schoolmates turn to music to escape problems at home and to impress a mysterious girl.

With a score that embraces the new wave sounds of the era, SING STREET celebrates the excitement of first love and the power of music, with “some lovely interlacing of bubbly pop and more somber, contemplative strains” (The New York Times).

“A boy presses ‘PLAY’ and the world goes away.
That basic, everyday magic act takes on fresh, senses-stirring life in Sing Street.”
